How do you ensure the right solutions to address your ergonomics issues when it comes to manual material handling (MMH)? Does one solution fit all? Lift assists, lift tables, and carts are all typical fixes we see used in the workplace to mitigate the risks associated with MMH. They can be effective in the right situation, but we've also seen way too many lift assists being used as coat racks! It can be costly if you choose the wrong solution or make design mistakes.
